Risk and Reward Profile

Historical data used for calculation of the synthetic risk and reward indicator may not be a reliable indication for the future.

The lowest category does not mean a "risk free investment".

The Fund is considered a high risk investment product because the assets are mainly invested into the equity markets of the Emerging Europe region. Investors should acknowledge that there is no guarantee that the capital invested into the Fund will be preserved or that it will grow. The risk category shown is not guaranteed and may shift over time.

Various risks relate to investing into the Fund that may have a negative effect on the outcome of the investment and are not reflected with the risk and reward indicator. In case the risk factors materialise, it is possible that the investor will lose a substantial part of the investment in the Fund.

The most critical risks that are most likely to have an impact on the market value of the assets of the Fund include market risk, issuer's price risk, liquidity risk, foreign currency risk, political risk and the risk arising from the concentration of asset classes or markets.

The assets of the Fund shall be fully invested in financial instruments of Emerging Europe countries. The legal, political and economic infrastructure of emerging countries is still at an early stage of development. In such countries it is more likely that social, economic or political instability will occur.

As a result, investing in the Emerging Europe region is accompanied by higher risks compared to investing in developed markets.

Investors of the Fund should accept that the positive developments and successful reforms that have taken place in some countries may not necessarily happen in other countries. The market capitalisation of Emerging Europe markets is relatively small. These markets are often volatile and have low liquidity.

The currency exchange rates of the investment region may substantially fluctuate against the Fund's reference currency, the euro and this may have a significant impact on the Unit's net asset value. The Management Company does not generally hedge foreign currency exchange rate risks. Countries may impose restrictions on capital flows and currency export. This may result in difficulties for the Fund in drawing sales proceeds and may harm the ability of the Fund to redeem Units regularly. Financial supervision may be ineffective in the countries of the investment region. Accounting, auditing and reporting standards accepted in the Emerging Europe countries may not be equivalent to the standards accepted in developed markets. The systems for settlement and registering of securities and the regulations applicable to and supervision of settlement bodies, registrars and custodians may not be up to the standards assumed in developed markets.

When investing into Emerging Europe markets, the investor should take into account that any risk factor listed in this section is more likely to materialise compared to investing into developed markets.

The list of risks that are related to investing in the Fund is available in more detail in the Fund prospectus on pages 8-11.

Risk and Reward Profile

Historical data used for calculation of the synthetic risk and reward indicator may not be a reliable indication for the future.

The lowest category does not mean a "risk free investment".

The Fund is considered a high risk investment product because the assets are mainly invested into the equity markets of the Emerging Europe region. Investors should acknowledge that there is no guarantee that the capital invested into the Fund will be preserved or that it will grow. The risk category shown is not guaranteed and may shift over time.

Various risks relate to investing into the Fund that may have a negative effect on the outcome of the investment and are not reflected with the risk and reward indicator. In case the risk factors materialise, it is possible that the investor will lose a substantial part of the investment in the Fund.

The most critical risks that are most likely to have an impact on the market value of the assets of the Fund include market risk, issuer's price risk, liquidity risk, foreign currency risk, political risk and the risk arising from the concentration of asset classes or markets.

The assets of the Fund shall be fully invested in financial instruments of Emerging Europe countries. The legal, political and economic infrastructure of emerging countries is still at an early stage of development. In such countries it is more likely that social, economic or political instability will occur.

As a result, investing in the Emerging Europe region is accompanied by higher risks compared to investing in developed markets.

Investors of the Fund should accept that the positive developments and successful reforms that have taken place in some countries may not necessarily happen in other countries. The market capitalisation of Emerging Europe markets is relatively small. These markets are often volatile and have low liquidity.

The currency exchange rates of the investment region may substantially fluctuate against the Fund's reference currency, the euro and this may have a significant impact on the Unit's net asset value. The Management Company does not generally hedge foreign currency exchange rate risks. Countries may impose restrictions on capital flows and currency export. This may result in difficulties for the Fund in drawing sales proceeds and may harm the ability of the Fund to redeem Units regularly. Financial supervision may be ineffective in the countries of the investment region. Accounting, auditing and reporting standards accepted in the Emerging Europe countries may not be equivalent to the standards accepted in developed markets. The systems for settlement and registering of securities and the regulations applicable to and supervision of settlement bodies, registrars and custodians may not be up to the standards assumed in developed markets.

When investing into Emerging Europe markets, the investor should take into account that any risk factor listed in this section is more likely to materialise compared to investing into developed markets.

The list of risks that are related to investing in the Fund is available in more detail in the Fund prospectus on pages 8-11.
